The Bottom Line

Schaeffer's Supreme 7000 extends drain intervals in asphalt paving operation.

The Company

Wheeler Coatings of Round Rock, Texas

The Story

Wheeler Coatings is an asphalt road paving business with 65 pieces of equipment. They have switched from Delo to Schaeffer's Supreme 7000 15W-40 in totes to service all of their equipment. In just their 17 haul trucks, they extended drain intervals from 8,000 miles to 20,000 at a savings of $10,000 annually.

Robert Sutton, the fleet maintenance manager, is also very pleased with how well his equipment is performing on the Schaeffer Lubricants he is using. In addition, Supreme 7000 10W-30 is being used in smaller company vehicles as well as the owner's Hummer to extend their oil change intervals. Other Schaeffer products being used by Wheeler Coatings in their road paving equipment include 167, 239, 221, 190, 266, and 4002.
